Redcliffe Peninsula Line Open Day

Monday October 3 was the open day for the Redcliffe Peninsula Line and it was a feel good day. All who attended Kippa-Ring Station revelled in the cheerful atmosphere.

Even the official proceedings were unusually light hearted; the polties talked of bipartisanship, MC Rupert McCall cracked wise but it was our Mayor, Allan Sutherland, who had the joke of the day.

He regaled crowd that since 2010 when agreement for the project was formalised by Council, State and Federal Governments, we've had: 'four prime ministers, three premiers... and one mayor'. Boom. He could have dropped the mic and walked off stage in his period garb at that very moment while the crowd roared with laughter. It wasn't a political dig, it was funny. Because it's true.

Prime Minister Malcolm Turnbull said the project was a vital investment in the local community.

"The Moreton Bay Region is home to more than 375,000 people and the population is expected to exceed 500,000 within 15 years," Mr Turnbull said.

"This rail line will attract new business investment in the area, provide better connectivity between key activity centres and remove approximately 600 cars from the local road network for every full train."

Mr Turnbull said the rail line would see some commuters switch from private vehicles to public transport, which will in turn reduce congestion on the local road network.

Premier Anastacia Palaszczuk said the new rail line will be transformational for the region, especially for suburbs adjacent to the rail line.

"This project is not just an investment in this region, it is an investment in Queensland's economy," Ms Palaszczuk said.

"The new rail line will deliver more than 650 train services a week between Kippa-Ring and Brisbane, with trains running every six to 12 minutes in morning and afternoon peaks, and every 30 minutes in off-peak periods and during weekends.

"Importantly, it better connects the local community to the wider SEQ network and brings the Brisbane CBD and other destinations closer.

Moreton Bay Regional Council Mayor Allan Sutherland said that after more than 100 years in the making, it was hard to believe the Redcliffe Peninsula Line was finally here.

"The Redcliffe Peninsula Line and new bus network will completely transform our region from this day forward, taking thousands of cars off the roads and better connecting our residents with employment and education opportunities," Mayor Sutherland said.

"Thanks in part to this major investment, the Moreton Bay region is now one of Australia's fastest growing urban areas, with Queensland's strongest economy."

"We're already seeing incredible growth across our region as a result of this transformative project, with the number of businesses, residents, new development and investment along the rail corridor increasing at rapid rates."

"We're looking forward to the continued growth this rail line is expected to unlock, including the vital role it will play in driving forward other major projects for our region like the new university precinct adjacent to Petrie station - The Mill at Moreton Bay."

Then the ribbon was cut, ceremoniously opening the line, and those who had won the ballot to ride the line first filed on board with dignitaries.

Trains started regular operation the following day.

100+ year journey for Redcliffe Peninsula Line

In conjunction with the historic opening of the Redcliffe Peninusular Line, Moreton Bay Regional Council has unveiled century-old newspaper clippings and historical maps detailing the Redcliffe Peninsula Line's 100-plus year journey from idea to reality.

The collection of maps, clippings and photographs, some dating as far back as 1885, provide an insight into the push to connect the Redcliffe peninsula to Queensland's rail network.

Moreton Bay Regional Council's staff members discovered and archived the photos and newspaper clippings to build and create a detailed history of the rail project. They demonstrate the strong public support the rail concept had from successive generations of local residents and governments.

"From the 1885 rail committee, the push by Sandgate Town Council in 1897, to the Redcliffe City Council of the 1960s and Mr Des Frawley, the former Member for Caboolture, in 1978, it's clear to see that across multiple generations, our community saw the need for a train line," Mayor Sutherland said.

"The collection contains a number of draft rail maps created throughout the years, as well as newspaper articles showing how the current iteration of the Redcliffe Peninsula Line came to be.

"These pieces provide a great snapshot into the support and journey it took to create the rail line we know today, and after reading the articles and looking at some of the maps, I have no doubt our region's forefathers would be proud to see the Redcliffe Peninsula Line come to fruition, complete with its six new stations.

Council's local history officer Kelly Ashford worked on the archiving project and said the first documented statement of a rail line to the Redcliffe Peninsula was on October 14, 1885 in The Telegraph newspaper.

"The article recounted a meeting that was held at the Exchange to consider creating a 22 mile railway from the existing Gympie line to Redcliffe," Ms Ashford said.

"Discussions into the initial line continued into the 1890s until there was a renewed call for a Redcliffe rail line in 1897, this time proposing to extend the Sandgate Line through to the Redcliffe Peninsula.

"It's estimated that back then a rail extension from Sandgate to Redcliffe would have cost £200,000.

We've made the entire collection available on our website. To view them visit : www.northlakesmessenger.com.au/pics

1980s Land secured for the rail corridor.	2005 Redcliffe City Council moved to support a campaign to finally have the Petrie to Kippa-Ring railway built.	2009 Queensland Premier Anna Bligh made a pre-election promise to support the Moreton Bay Rail project. She won the election.	Early 2010 Queensland Government and Moreton Bay Regional Council each invested $2M to prepare rigorous plans and a robust submission to Infrastructure Australia for the Moreton Bay Rail Link.	2010 Infrastructure Australia declared the Moreton Bay Rail Line a nationally significant infrastructure project.	2010 Both the Federal Government and Federal Opposition pledged $740 million to the Moreton Bay Rail Link project in the lead up to the 2010 Federal Election. The Gillard-led Labor Government won the election.	2010 The newly elected Federal Government announced the Kippa-Ring railway line would be fast-tracked, with the project to be complete by 2016.	December 2010 Agreement for the project was finally formalised and signed by Moreton Bay Regional Council, and the Federal and State Governments.	December 2013 Construction work started on the new rail line.	ALL ABOARD!

HUMPYBONG RAILWAY

On Tuesday afternoon a meeting was held at the Exchange to consider the question of making a railway to Humpybong.

The line proposed will start from the Gympie about 22 miles from Brisbane and run through the Peninsula to Redcliffe, a distance of about 9 miles.

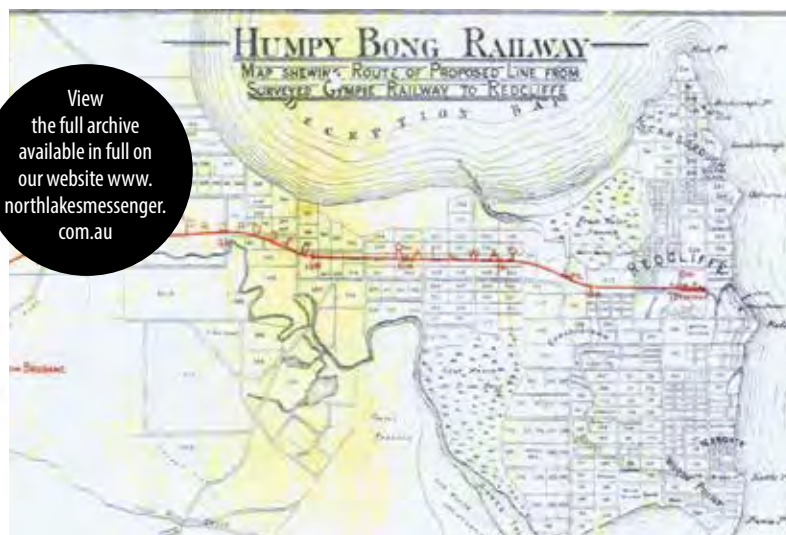

Mr R.J. Cottell occupied the chair and stated that a survey of the line had been made by Mr George Simkin who said that the proposed route would be an inexpensive one. Mr Cottell also said that the line ran through the land of several large syndicates who would be prepared to support it with capital.

Several of the gentlemen present thought the line would be better started from Petrie's residence crossing Hayes's Inlet, and thence to Redcliffe.

After some discussion the suggested route was adopted, and the following committee was appointed to carry out the survey, and make all necessary preparations:-

Messrs J. Hamilton M.L.A., A.J. Barker, R.J. Cottell, St Andrew Warde, T. Bunton, a H. Tubbs and R. Spencer Browne.

The first documented statement of a rail line to the Redcliffe Peninsula was on October 14, 1885 in The Telegraph newspaper.

North Pine Railway Station yards showing various forms of transport used by farmers to bring produce to the Station, 1890. Also shown is a bullock team with a load of sawn timber. Tom Petrie's farm can be seen with its hedge and crop of corn. The small shed in the background contained a pump which was used to supply water to a high tank for the railway engines. This photograph also records the installation of the telephone service. A ladder is leaning against the last pole from which the telegraph facilities were provided at the Station.

Celebrating 48 years OF OPERATION

Local company Sandgate Pest Control are celebrating 48 years of operation in 2016.

Sandgate Pest Control has been servicing local residents and commercial pest control needs since 1968. The family owned and operated business started as a one man operation and over the years has expanded to a trusted professional team, offering a wide range of services.

Ron Howarth took over Sandgate Pest Control back in 1968 and ran it successfully until he retired. Louise Howarth is the current Managing Director/Owner and continues to run the business with the same mottos. Louise says "we have a strong customer focus; we make sure all of our services are professional and of a high quality. We aim to be the responsible local company that everyone knows and trusts".

Their operators specialize in termite control and general pest control. Whether it is termites, cockroaches, silverfish, bird lice, spiders, ants, fleas or rodents Sandgate Pest Control has it covered. They use the best available non-toxic products that are not harmful to the environment (or your plants). They can be used without the need to completely vacate the premises as they are safe, hassle free and applied in the safest manner.

Sandgate Pest Control's customer commitment is the reason their business has grown, with most of their business coming from repeat customers, referrals and word of mouth.

You will have peace of mind by calling Sandgate Pest Control to help you with any pest problems.

Rest better at night

By catching thoughts during the day

WRITES SHARYN FISHER

Do you find yourself replaying what has happened during the day? I said this, he said that and I should have said this or that? Well, there is a way to stop before you react.

Megan Ward, who has studied science and naturopathy and is the Author of: 'A State of Mind – Happiness Beyond all Anxiety', states that in order to be able to see the thoughts, hear the words or read the words, we must: stop; pause, breathe, create the space and silence around the information that has just been revealed to us and look at it in the light of an inquiring, questioning mind.

We need to ask ourselves:

1. What is being said?
2. What do I think?
3. What feels right?

"We run on preconditioned patterns of behaviour – we are not using our intelligence we have been gifted. If you can't catch your thoughts at the level of your speech, then catch them at the level of your action," Megan said.

Most of all, Megan said for people to be patient with themselves while they are trying to catch those thoughts: "Your mind has controlled you for a long time; be gentle with yourself."

She said it takes time and perseverance to break the chain reaction of reaction.

When Megan started trying her non-reacting on her kids, she said they became very frustrated with her: "Rather than reacting to them each time they spoke or asked me a question, I would be silent in order to verify my response, to question my knowledge."

She said it was a revelation that she didn't have to just repeat what came into her head and in fact someone else's words that she had once heard, but she could research the best response herself.

"It was frustrating for my children. How could they argue with me if I didn't react?" Megan said.

I think we can all benefit from Megan's revelation and use it as much as we can, and the more we use it, the better we will become and we will free ourselves from our preconditioned thoughts.

Obesity crisis tipped to worsen

BY DR ANITA, BRISBANE NORTH PHN

Despite efforts to curb the nation's climbing obesity rate, new modelling predicts one in six women and one in 10 men will be severely obese within a decade.

Researchers at the University of Sydney (USyd), the Charles Perkins Centre and the George Institute for Global Health developed their model as part of a wider research project examining the most effective ways to combat obesity.

Associate Professor Alison Hayes from USyd's School of Public Health, says the model is the first to predict weight gain among all Australian adults and to reflect changes in the proportion of overweight, obese and severely obese people over time.

"Contrary to popular belief, it's not in middle age that people suddenly pile on the pounds," Professor Hayes said.

"In fact, at a population level, young people gain more weight each year than older people. But for most of us weight gain tends to be cumulative and so we're more likely to move into an overweight or obese category later in life," she said.

"An increase in childhood obesity means Australians are starting out adulthood with a higher BMI (Body Mass Index) and higher levels of obesity than ever before.

"For example, in 1995 around one in 10 young adults were obese, but in 2014 it was closer to one in five. We're also living longer, and most sectors of the population gain weight throughout their life.

"The model takes all this into account by calculating the amount of weight that adults put on every year depending on their age, sex and current weight, as well as the BMI of adolescents as they enter adulthood.

"It also takes into account the national birth rate, current life expectancy in Australia and higher mortality of people with high BMI," she said.

obesity already affects around 32 per cent of adults in the North Lakes and Redcliffe areas

The study has recently been published in the International Journal of Obesity and predicts that 35 per cent of Australian adults will be obese by 2025, up from 28 per cent currently.

Locally, we know from Australian Health Survey data gathered between 2011 and 2013 that obesity already affects around 32 per cent of adults in the North Lakes and Redcliffe areas.

But even more concerning, this new modelling predicts that 13 percent or one in eight adults nationally will be in the severely obese category (with a BMI over 35) by the year 2025.

It should be noted at this point that BMI is a useful screening tool to identify whether or not a person might have, or be on track to develop, a weight-related health issue. BMI is used to estimate body fatness, but it does not directly measure body fat because it only takes into account height and weight.

Research shows that BMI correlates well to body fatness in large groups of people, but it is less reliable for any one individual.

According to the standards applied to BMI calculations, a person is considered overweight if they have a BMI over 25 and obese if their BMI is above 30.

"We know an increase in obesity and severe obesity will result in higher rates of chronic disease such as type 2 diabetes, cardiovascular disease and cancer, with an increased strain on the health system and healthcare costs," Professor Hayes said.

"Any reduction in the incidence of obesity going forward will have beneficial impacts on population health and the healthcare costs, but the model can help establish where our efforts should be prioritised," she said.

Better Incubators for local start-ups

Business incubators across Moreton Bay can now apply for grants to help local start-ups access advice, capital and gain valuable connections

Federal Member for Petrie Luke Howarth MP said the $23 million Incubator Support initiative would provide matching grants of between $10,000 and $500,000 to create new incubators, or for performing incubators to expand their services.

"The idea is to bring local businesses together through an incubator to increase collaboration and local knowledge," said Luke Howarth MP.

"Ultimately it's about providing the opportunity and tools for local businesses to be competitive and to put them and their ideas in the driving seat for potential success."

Incubators can also access matching grants of up to $25,000 to engage experts-in-residence from Australia and overseas.

"This means start-ups will have access to the top-quality research, managerial and

The idea is to bring local businesses together through an incubator to increase collaboration and local knowledge technical talent they need to develop their capabilities and commercialise their ideas," said Luke Howarth MP.

Minister for Industry, Innovation and Science Greg Hunt MP said we need to ensure "more of innovative businesses can access the resources and networks they need to grow".

"I want to see more Australian businesses achieve success on the world stage and I'm hopeful this initiative will help start-ups to quickly scale-up and launch into global markets."

The Incubator Support initiative is a new element of the Entrepreneurs' Programme and is one of the measures under the Turnbull Government's National Innovation and Science Agenda.

Applications are now open. To view further information, guidelines and to apply visit: www.business.gov.au/incubator-support

Why do I always go for bad boys and can I change who I'm attracted to?

Hello Leonie,

I'll get right to it. I've had a dreadful love life and always seem to end up with bullies, control freaks and pigs.

I am in my early thirties now and have just ended one more nightmare relationship. I know I have a tendency to fall for bad boys and this has been my problem since high school. I find the broody, dark and edgy guys so sexy but once I get into a relationship with one I feel like crap.

I'm so over this heartache. I find nice guys boring and sometimes trite. I know that if I want happiness I need to ditch these a**holes and not go near them ever again but I don't trust myself.

I really want to have a baby before it's too late. So I feel torn between settling for a guy I find boring for the rest of my life or staying on my own and never having a family. I don't want to be hooking up with another a**hole just to have a baby which will probably end up with me being a single mother - this is definitely not what I want.

Why do I always go for these bad boys and can a person change who they are attracted to?

Suzie/Kallangur

Hi Suzie,

There have been studies done and research seems to suggest that one of the driving factors for women who find bad boys attractive seems to be linked to a woman's fear of vulnerability.

These women may feel, even on a very subconscious level that being protected is more important than compatibility, respect and mutual love. This is often linked to self esteem issues where a woman may actually want someone to take the reins even if they really do know that there is a narcissistic personality running the show. Some may even like the unpredictable and edgy drama that comes with these types of men.

Sometimes there is a genetic component at play and a woman may feel that a bad boy is strong, virile, healthy and in control and believe that these are great baby making indicators.

These bad boys can be very attractive and sexy. In contrast, nice guys can seem very predictable and can be interpreted as you say, as bland and boring.

Another reason can be that women love to nurture and "fix" broken men. The good news for you is that you have identified the problematic relationship pattern that is keeping you from having a fulfilling and rewarding relationship and that is half the battle.

Once you know what is wrong, you are better placed to fix things. I would encourage you to take yourself off the market for a while and just get to learn to be with yourself. No man, no drama and no problems.

Some counselling may help but the thing you need to do is to be absolutely clear on what a good man really means and be determined to settle for nothing less.

Multitude Choir Sings Stage and Screen Award Winners

Sandgate Town Hall, October 22

Following on from their very successful concert last year with The New Groove Jazz Ensemble, those enthusiastic singers from Multitude choir return again to Sandgate Town Hall on Saturday evening 22nd October to present a concert of award winning music from stage and screen.

You'll be entertained by songs such as 'Moon River' from Breakfast at Tiffanys, 'Can you Feel the Love Tonight' from The Lion King, 'Cheek to Cheek' from the motion picture Top Hat, a great medley from 'The Boy from Oz' including 'Tenterfield Saddler', 'Don't Cry out Loud' and the bright and colourful 'I Go to Rio' and more.

Multitude is an award winning choir based at Redcliffe, who have been regularly performing a mix of contemporary music, such as pop, jazz, Broadway and soft rock around the northern Moreton Bay and the wider Brisbane region for the last 12 years.

This will be their third concert at the beautiful heritage Sandgate Town Hall and this time, they're really looking forward to welcoming Vox Populous as their guest artist.

Fresh from their performance at Brisbane Sings at QPAT, where they shared the stage with other Queensland choirs including Multitude, Vox Populus are an exciting contemporary show choir, who as well as combining with Multitude for a couple of numbers, will also present a selection of bright and entertaining music.

Entry cost to this great show is a very reasonable $10, payable at the door, which includes supper.

Multitude is a not for profit organisation and a proportion of proceeds from their concerts always support a local charity.

Your Stars

Aquarius Jan 21-Feb 19: Thank heavens you're the epitome of grace under pressure because people need that now. You may turn into something else once out of earshot, but that's ok. You're only human.

Pisces Feb 20-march 20: You're entering a period where you'll be cleaning out your psychic closets. Be very picky about what to keep versus what to pitch.

Aries March 21-April 20: It's a wonderful time for starting a relationship or collaborative effort. There will be comrades in arms spirit.

Taurus April 21-May 21: You will need to reconsider someone you had passed over at a certain time. Not everyone makes a stunning first impression and your right to revisit this candidate.

Gemini May 22-June 21: You're in better standing with clients or customers than you think. Explain what's been up with you lately. They'll be understanding and supportive.

Cancer June 22-July 23: You appreciate the support, but wonder if it's conditional. It is, but so what? Don't look a gift horse in the mouth.

Leo July 24-Aug 23: One door may close, but another opens. Say yes to all invites as you'll want to be out and about.

Virgo Aug 24-Sept 23: Self image is such a dubious thing. It's subject to moods. Take stock of abilities. This gives a clear idea of what you bring to the table.

Libra Sept 24-Oct 23: You may feel a little out of sorts this week. Relax, so you can be a little yin when you're feeling yang.

Scorpio Oct 24-Nov 22: More money goes out than comes in. But this is a first step of a profitable association so think of it as a deposit on future returns.

Sagittarius Nov 23-Dec 21: Your newfound verve is invigorating. You gain more ground by the day. Just don't overreach your mark and you'll be fine.

Capricorn Dec 22-Jan 20: You have more time than you think in which to make decisions. Run ideas passed your inner circle. Their input is invaluable now.

North Lakes Community Women's Group Inc. News

Written by Sam Stevens Publicity Officer NLCWGI

Good company, a great meal and a gorgeous spring day all combined to create a comfortable atmosphere at Sea Salt & Vine as 66 members and guests gathered for our weekly meeting. The outdoor setting allowed some of the exuberant chatter and laughter to escape onto the waterfront, advertising our presence.

With just four weeks to our Birthday Lunch we should be considering our theme, FIRE & ICE, and the colours encouraged to emulate this, RED – ORANGE – YELLOW – BLACK – BLUE – SILVER – WHITE.

Tuesday 11th October 09:45 FASHION PARADE presented by Fashions On The Go. The collection that comes on the day will reflect the customers' needs and is constantly changed throughout the season. You will be pleasantly surprised by the unique collection of "easy wear - easy care" fashions, undergarments, sleepwear and accessories, and better still the prices represent "value for money."

Tuesday 18th October 09:45 CRAFT DAY. There will be various workshops, you can learn how to make your own Xmas cards, Gift Tags or Christmas Houses and more. This is always a fun event with a high level of interest.

Tuesday 25th October 11:30 BIRTHDAY LUNCH, Mon Komo Hotel, 99 Marine Parade, Redcliffe. One of our major functions of the year themed FIRE & ICE and celebrating 13 years of fun, friendship and frivolity. Nominations for our Executive Committee Members close at noon at our Birthday Lunch and will be announced during our lunch. Members only.

Our meetings are open to all women in North Lakes/Mango Hill – Moreton Bay district. Please refer to our listing under the Community Notice Board. For more information contact Julie, 3886 4552; Colleen, 0418 658 442; Carmen, 3491 9410.

Are you searching for a loving, goofy, adorable sidekick?

STOP SEARCHING! Kristy is the girl for you!

Kristy is a beautiful natured girl that just wants to please you. She loves her people, whether they are adults or children and wants to be your friend.

A life full of cuddles and pats would be Kristy's dream. She is happy to come inside with her family when they are home and is just as happy to go outside when no one is home. She is starting to work out that she can play with toys instead of just chewing them.

Kristy's next favourite thing in the world is food, this dog would do anything for a treat and is easy to train.

She walks happily with her halti and loves to go for walks in the morning. Kristy isn't a high demand dog and rarely barks, even if someone comes to the door.

You will fall in love with this girl when she looks up at you with her warm brown eyes.

Kristy would love a sidekick to call her own. Visit safehavenanimalrescueinc.com. You'll find Kristy waiting for you under the 'Adoptions' section.

A Quarter of Surprises

Median house price up

The property market in the southeast corner of Queensland returned to positive territory this quarter, following last quarter's contraction, and the Brisbane LGA median house price has grown 1.3 per cent to a new high of $635,000, the highest this has been in history.

The data in the REIQ Queensland Market Monitor also revealed some surprises in the June quarter, including almost three per cent growth in the Townsville market – its second quarter of growth in the past year – a two per cent fall in the Toowoomba market, which brings the city of flowers its second contraction in two consecutive quarters, and an unusual twist in Bundaberg where the median unit price is more expensive than the median house price. It's cheaper to buy a house than a unit in Bundaberg.

REIQ CEO Antonia Mercorella said it had been a challenging quarter for the Queensland property market, with factors such as the lengthy federal election campaign and extensive uncertainty around the negative gearing debate impacting heavily on most markets.

"We know from our agents that listings volumes were down and the whole market really just hit pause while they waited for a result in the election, which would also give certainty around negative gearing for investors," she said.

"Most of Queensland has struggled through this uncertainty and we have seen more markets contract than grow, which, of course, is disappointing," she said. "However, there has been significant focus on Queensland's affordability and we have anecdotal evidence that investors from the southern states are once more returning to our markets," she said.

"The Queensland housing market is doing what it does best – growing in a steady, sustainable way, consistently over the long term and it is a very good thing that we have not followed the peaks and troughs that occupy the graphs of other property markets," Ms Mercorella said.

Brisbane's unit market fell just a fraction, 0.2 per cent, to $440,000 for the quarter. However, the annual median sale price grew 0.3 per cent compared with June 2015, to $441,300, and this is 7.6 per cent greater than five years ago.

"The Queensland residential property market has improved this quarter, broadly speaking, and while we continue our efforts to do everything we can to help those markets operating in challenging conditions, it is encouraging to see solid growth being recorded in other parts of the state," Ms Mercorella said.
